Louise directed faithfully its operations, growth and remodeling during her tenure there.

Members of CRALL shall not soon forget Louise's term as President, marked by vitality and enthusiasm. Her presence (as well as that of Bob, her devoted husband) will be missed at ORALL and AALL conventions. Most of all, we miss her sincere friendship, Our expressions of sympathy to her family reflect also our own deep personal loss,

AALL LIAISON COMMITTEE WITH LC

In 1965, the American Association of Law Libraries established a Liaison with the Library of Congress Committee to maintain lines of communication with the Librarian of Congress to facilitate the work of standing committees in their contact with the Library of Congress and to make available the professional resources of the Association to the Library of Congress.

On October 31, 1968, that Committee, of which Nancy Miller of Chio State University College of Law Library, is a member, met in Washington, as guests of the Library of Congress. Committee members conferred with Law Library and Library of Congress staff and were briefed on the Card Automated Reproduction and Distribution System, development of the various schedules in Glass K and the services of the Library's Exchange and Gifts Division.

Designed to provide more prompt service in distributing printed catalog cards to subscribers, CARDS (Card Automated Reproduction and Distribution System) utilizes an optical character reader, capable of reading at a speed of 1200 documents per minute, twenty-five different typewriter fonts, as well as hand printing on newly designed order forms. When read, forthcoming supplement to Ellinger's List the subscriber's number, a code indicating the type of handling desired, and stock number of the catalog cards ordered, are recorded in three forms; in conventional print out form on a high-speed line printer, for a permanent record of orders received; on magnetic tape, for inventory control; and in fluorescent bar coding on the back of each order slip for machine sorting. Order slips are sorted by Library of Congress card number and compared against a master magnetic tape list of out-of-print

APR 7 1969 card stock. Although orders for cards in stock are at present being filled manually, installation, next year, of photocomposition and off-set printing equipment which can produce catalog cards automatically on demand, will eliminate the need for maintaining large stocks of printed cards and the filling of orders manually.

Carol Evation (Cincinnata Bar) To complete the order process, the System employs high speed sorting equipment to arrange order slips and cands by subscriber number and a line printer connected to one of the computers, to prepare invoices and labels. After these invoices and labels are matched with order slip and cards, the shipment is mailed to the subscriber. (5) assetted a subscribe

The Committee was pleased to learn that the schedule of Class KF, developed by a panel of experts, of which Professor Policek, Director of Research Services, Ohio State University College of Law, was a member, had been delivered to the printer the morning of October 31, 1968. Subject specialists are working diligently to develop notations for jurisprudence, English law and German law, these schedules to be completed in 1969.

Program (Fall) Another publishing venture, of interest to the Committee and to catalogens is the of Law Subject Headings available from the Fred Rothman Company.

A tour of the Library's Exchange and Gifts Division revealed an abundance of documents and other legal material. The Committée plans to cooperate with the Library of Congress in making the contents of this duplicate exchange collection known to American law libraries.
